UC:S29 PAPERS OF KENNETH KING MUNSIE LEYS (FELLOW 1908–42)

Kenneth King Munsie Leys (1876–1950) was both in Scotland. He had an older brother, Norman (born 1875), and his mother died about a month after he was born. Leys was educated at the University of Glasgow, and then read History at Merton College Oxford, getting a First in 1903. After a short time working as a Tutor at Isleworth Training College, he returned to Glasgow as a Lecturer, before being elected a History Fellow at University College in December 1908.

Leys did not hold many College offices: he was Junior Dean from 1912–15 and again for a few months in 1920. He was also Dean of the Hall from 1919–20. He was absent on war service from 1915–18. Like many Oxford academics of his time, Leys was intensely self-critical, and published nothing, devoting himself instead to teaching and lecturing. To judge from his lectures and notes below, Leys specialised in British political history and the history of Ireland in the later 18th and early 19th centuries. Some of the material in UC:S29/C1 below shows also that he had several friends in Ireland, and took a keen interest in events there during the early 20th century. Apart from his work, Leys was also a keen mountaineer, regularly visiting the Alps and the Lake District.

In 1916 Leys married Margaret Hayes Robinson, History Tutor of Somerville College, and they had a daughter, Mary Wade Leys. Sadly, Margaret Leys was killed in a street accident in 1930. In 1933 Leys then married Agnes Sandys, History Tutor of St. Hilda's College.

Leys was due to retire in March 1940, but owing to the war, his post was extended until the end of Hilary Term 1942. He was elected an Emeritus Fellow on the determination of his Fellowship. In 1940, Leys had taken holy orders, and was offered the College living of Melsonby in 1941, but declined it on the grounds that it would be too demanding for him. On his retirement however, Leys did accept the small living of Isel, near Cockermouth, in Cumberland. He died there in 1950.

These papers were given to the archives in September 1995. They had evidently been collected and preserved by his second wife Agnes. Most of the papers fall into three main groups, as follows:

- (1) Letters written by Leys, which were given to Agnes Leys by his friends in response to a request made by her after her husband's death to send her any letters from Leys which they could find. In particular, there are a great many letters to Sir Maurice Powicke (whom Leys knew as "Freddy"). Conversely, not many letters written to Leys are preserved in the collection.
- (2) Letters of condolence written to Agnes Leys after her husband's death.
- (3) Notes for lectures delivered by Leys.

There are obituaries for Leys in UCR 1949/50 pp. 4, 8 and 25, and in The Times of 22 June 1950.

Catalogued in October 2021.

22 letters to Leys from his aunt Agatha, some of which are addressed jointly to him and his older brother Norman. These contain news of relatives and family friends, and advice for Leys in his later life.

UC:S29/C1/2 October 1902–October 1905

9 letters to Leys from his aunt Eliza. These contain news of relatives and family friends.

UC:S29/C1/3 September 1903–February 1904

11 Letters to Leys from “Madge”. The identity of “Madge” is uncertain, but, to judge from UC:S29/C1/2 above, she might have been the sister of John Lochhead. She wrote to Leys about his relatives and he knew several of her relatives. Her family used to live at Altafearn, Kames, but they sold up in September 1903.

UC:S29/C1/4 3 Sep 1906

Letter to Leys from K. T. Frost (address, “In the Persian Gulf near Bushire”). Frost describes his adventures in the Middle East. Kingdon Tregosse Frost (1877–1914), who studied Classics at Brasenose, overlapped with Leys at Isleworth Training College in 1904. He became an archaeologist, and in 1905–8 was working for the Ministry of Education in the Middle East. He was killed in the First World War.

UC:S29/C1/5 n.d. (1918?)

Two copies of a typescript article or lecture about whether people in Ireland should support the First World War. The piece is undated, but allusions in it suggest that it dates from 1918. It was almost certainly not written by Leys, but presumably sent to him for interest.

UC:S29/C1/6 n.d. (1918?)

Typescript of a speech or memorandum on the state of Ireland at the end of the First World War. As with UC:S29/C1/5, this is almost certainly not by Leys, but sent to him for interest.

UC:S29/C1/7 2 October 1918

Typewritten letter, unsigned (1 page), to Leys from Gilbert Murray (address, Board of Education). Murray discusses the problems about introducing conscription.

UC:S29/C1/8 13 July 1920 and n.d.

Two letters to Leys from “Æ”, the pen name of the Irish writer George William Russell (1867–1935), address 84 Merrion Square. They discuss mutual friends, politics and co-operative ventures. Æ, like Leys, was friendly with Horace Plunkett.

Typed copy of letter to Leys from an unnamed correspondent (address, 105 Mount Street, London, W.1). The writer is delivering some speeches, and wants to visit Leys to talk to him beforehand, and asks Leys to give him some help with the historical background.

UC:S29/C1/10 8 December 1920 & 22 March 1921

Two letters to Kenneth Leys from Horace Plunkett (matr. 1873; respectively addressed, The Plunkett House, 84 Merrion Square, Dublin, and on boat S. S. Ballie). Leys evidently was involved in Plunkett's charitable work, and the letters discuss this.

UC:S29/C1/11 27 April 1938

Letter addressed from The Plunkett House, 84 Merrion Square, Dublin to an unnamed addressee to Leys. After jokingly abusing Leys for not sending them any letters, the writer reports on the current state of Plunkett House, and how much it has changed.

UC:S29/C1/12 26 April 1941

Letter (2 sheets) to Leys from T. E. Carron (address, Courar [?] View, Pennington, near Ulverton). Carron discusses R. C. Collingwood's new book (perhaps An Essay on Metaphysics, published in 1940), and some of Walter Scott's novels.

UC:S29/C2 - LETTERS WRITTEN BY KENNETH LEYS TO FRIENDS AND FAMILY, COLLECTED AFTER HIS DEATH

As stated in the introduction, after her husband's death Agnes Leys asked several of his friends to send her such letters from Leys as they had, and this is the result. Leys was neither thorough nor consistent in dating his letters; not infrequently his correspondence (most notably Maurice Powicke) added dates of their own to them.

UC:S29/C2/1 1902–1912

57 letters from Leys to Sir Maurice Powicke. Frederick Maurice Powicke (1879–1963), who in later years tended to use his second name, came to know Leys when they were undergraduates together at Oxford (Powicke was at Balliol). From 1905–6 he was Assistant Lecturer at the University of Liverpool, and then Assistant Lecturer at Manchester in 1906–8. In 1908 he was appointed a Prize Fellow at Merton College. In 1909–19 he was Professor of Modern History at Queen's University, Belfast, in 1919–28 Professor of Medieval History at Manchester, and finally in 1928–47 Regius Professor of Modern History at Oxford. His wife Susan was the sister of A. D. ("Sandie") Lindsay (matr. Univ. 1898; later Master of Balliol 1924–49), both of whom are mentioned regularly in the letters.

The letters to Powicke form the largest collection of letters from Leys to one correspondent, and reflect the closeness of their friendship in the first decade of the 20th century. Leys usually addresses Powicke as "Freddy" or "Dear Boy". Subjects discussed in their letters include regular expressions of friendship, historical subjects, academic activities such as giving lectures, Leys's comments on some of Powicke's publications and theology. The letters also discuss both men's career prospects (which in Leys's case are mostly concerned with his unhappiness as a lecturer at Glasgow, and his attempts to find a post at Oxford). They show that, before Leys was elected at University College, he had applied unsuccessfully for a Fellowship at Lincoln College. They also show that, as he was applying to University College, he was offered a post at St. Andrews, but vastly preferred the former. In large part, he has little to say about University College, apart from general comments on the abilities of his pupils (no. 50), and a letter of 1910 with barbed comments about A. S. L. Farquharson (no. 54).

Most of the letters bear at least approximate dates added by Powicke, and some of them are annotated by Powicke to explain allusions.

UC:S29/C2/2*September–October 1906

Typed transcripts, annotated by Agnes Leys (and perhaps prepared by her) of extracts from two letters from Leys to F. M. Powicke. The originals are nos. 22 and 25 in UC:S29/C2/1 above.

UC:S29/C2/3*1901–1934 & 1951

Envelope addressed to Agnes Leys on which she has written "Lenwood Letters". This encloses seven letters from Leys to Frank Lenwood and his wife Gertrude, which have been sent to Agnes Leys by Gertrude Lenwood. Some dates have been added, presumably by the Lenwoods. Frank Lenwood (1874–1934) was educated at Corpus Christi and Mansfield College, and became a missionary travelling in Australia and Polynesia; some of his papers are preserved at the School of African and Oriental Studies in London. The letters, some of which are annotated (by Lenwood?) to explain certain allusions, discuss religion and mutual friends, and the earliest ones include reflections on undergraduate life. Letter 5, from 1910, includes Leys's (unimpressed) reflections on academic life at University College, as well as gossip about his friend Robert Kenneth Evans (matr. Merton 1903), nicknamed "Jevons", Robert Parsons (F. 1907–11), and Sir Maurice Powick, with praise for William Temple, future Archbishop of Canterbury. The last letter is one of consolation to Gertrude Lenwood on her husband's death. [9 items]

UC:S29/C2/4*1903 & 1942

Typed transcripts of, three letters from Leys to Jack Lochhead (with the originals of the two letters from 1903). The 1903 letters respectively discuss theology, and a vivid dream which Leys had of Lochhead, and in the 1942 letter Leys talks about his retirement from University College, and his plans for the future.

UC:S29/C2/5*1906–1912 & 1950

Envelope addressed to Agnes Leys on which she has written "T. E. Harvey & K's letters to him". It contains a letter from Thomas Edmund Harvey (1875–1955) to Agnes Leys enclosing eight letters written to him by Leys, mainly between 1906 and 1912. Harvey was a social reformer and later MP; he was Warden of Toynbee Hall during the time that most of these letters were written.

Many of the letters merely thank Harvey for the gift of various books written by him, but some correspondence of 1912 centres on the efforts of Leys's brother Norman to support some members of the native population in British East Africa, and the trouble into which this is getting him. In one letter, Leys encloses a letter from his brother. [9 items]

UC:S29/C2/6 1931–1952

Envelope addressed to Agnes Leys on which she has written "Re. Ken". It contains a letter to Mrs. Leys from Edward Casson enclosing three letters to him from Leys dated 1931, 1938 and 1948. These mainly discuss the books of his poems which Casson regularly sent Leys.

UC:S29/C2/7 1937–1951

Envelope addressed to Agnes Leys, which includes 21 letters (some of them only fragmentary) from Leys to George Eugene Fasnacht (matr. 1919), and two letters to Leys from Fasnacht. Fasnacht (1897–1956) read History at University College, being taught by Leys, and went on to lecture in History at Sheffield and Leicester. He then returned to Oxford, becoming from 1937 a lecturer in History at University College. He was also attached to Nuffield College. His main area of interest was the work of Lord Acton, which culminated in his book Acton's Political Philosophy: an Analysis (London, 1952).

The letters discuss Fasnacht's return to Oxford, and Leys's advice on his career, and his frequent efforts to help him find work (which included persuading Sir William Beveridge (F. 1937–45) to write testimonials for him), and the prospect of work for Fasnacht at University College after the resignation of David Lindsay Keir as a Fellow in 1939. The later letters discuss Fasnacht's book on Acton, which Leys evidently read in draft. Most of the letters have been dated, if only approximately, by Fasnacht. The envelope also includes another print of the photograph of Leys at UC:S29/P1/5 below. [25 items]

Bundle of 13 letters from Leys to John Wild (F. 1933–45; M. 1945–51), one of which includes a postscript from Agnes Leys. Subjects include theology, reflections on College life, advice for how to encourage undergraduates to engage in public work, contributions to the College's Memorial Fund, plans for the unveiling of the Second World War Memorial and who might dedicate it, plans to move the Shelley Memorial to the Master's Garden, and memories of Robert Parsons (F. 1907–11) and Eric Hamilton (matr. 1909). Leys’s practice in writing up his lecture notes seems to have been to start off with a basis text, which he then amended and added to more or less every time that he gave them again, so that almost all of these lecture series are a mixture of old and new versions.
